

Heart of the Community Award

is presented to

Harvest For The World, Inc.

Mission: Seeking justice for all people, working with others to eliminate hunger and poverty and serving guests with respect, dignity and integrity. Harvest for the World shelters the homeless, feeds the hungry and provides resources for the cross addicted.

Harvest For The World is a non-profit organization, serving the disadvantaged populations of Roosevelt, New York and surrounding towns since 1998. Harvest For the World has implemented a variety of programs enhancing the quality of life for residents in the community and has become a well-known beacon that the residents of Roosevelt and surrounding towns have come to rely on. Harvest For the World has coordinated and expanded public and private food assistance resources, as well as linked eligible individuals and families with public and private social services.

Throughout the pandemic, Joy-Melanie Jermin and her mother Rosita Brooks volunteered at Harvest For The World's food pantry located in Roosevelt. Joanna Bell-Richards, founder of Harvest For The World and Mrs. Brooks work side by side on the pantry line distributing food to the local residents. Joy-Melanie Jermin also helps sort, pack and deliver food to neighbors who are unable to travel. Harvest For The World continues to be a beacon for food security to many families during this public health and economic crisis.
